STATUE OF JEFFERSON GIVEN TO UNIVERSITY

Exeklet Masterplece Will Be Unveiled With Proper Ceremonles During Commencement.

Charlottesville, Va., May 17.—It is now a settled fact that the Exeklet status of Jefferson will be in place at the University of Virginia in a few days, and unveiled with ceremonles of interest and dignity during commencement. This work of art is to repose in the centre of the plaza, on the north side of the rotunda. The granite base is already in position, and the status, which has reached the university from Rome, was unloaded to-day, and will soon be placed upon it.

The status is the masterplece of Sir Moses Exeklel, a Virginian, who saw the first serious side of life as a cale of the Virginia Military Institute, in the battle of New Market, where the corps supported Jackson. In Italy, as a student of art, and later as a remowned sculptor, he has always held the respectful attention of the art loving and art-respecting world. His studio in the ruins of the Batk of Diceletian, in the Eternal City, is visited by every tourist of culture who reaches Reme. Virginians especially receive cordial and distinguished consideration at the hands of the great founder.

This monument of the great founder of the inversity is a virtual gift to Virginia. When in place its value will approach $40.000, all of which was contributed by Sir Moses except the granite base, which is from a Virginia guarry, and the cost of transportation from Rome to the university. This latter has been no inconsiderable item.

granite base, which is from a Virginis quarry, and the cost of transportation from Rome to the university. This litter has been no inconsiderable item, amounting to about $3,000.

The program for the unvertiling has not yet been announced but it will measure up fully to the dignity of the occasion. Sir Moses himself will be present. Indeed, it is expected that he will be able to arrive at the university within ten days.

Ovation to Dr. Taylor.

During the festivities, Dr. William H. Taylor, professor of chemistry and of medical jurisprudence, entered the hail. He was greeted with acclaim every student rising to greet the physician and faculty member, who yesterday celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, and who had lived to see two visitations of Halley's comet.

Dr. Taylor is beloved by his students two visitations of Halley's comet.

Dr. Taylor is beloved by his students. His age, he said, forbade that he should enter quite into their festivities, but though the flesh was weak, the spirit was willing. He came in to see them, and to wish them well, and then after talking to those who gathered around him to congratulate him on his birthday, he quietly slipped away. His boy friends told him that they hoped to see him when Halley's comet comes again, He shook his head and smiled.

"Of the making of books," he said, quoting, "there is no end, and much study is a wearlness of the flesh."

"That's just the trouble with these people who are trying to end boxing," quickly interrupted Nelson. "Most of them have never seen a contest, and they don't know what they are talking about. Let me tell you something maybe you don't know. Theodore Roosevelt never missed a go when ha was in New York."

"He never missed a good bout here," answered Representative Sims.

"Do you think he would have done better with the gloves than with the big stick?" Inquired Representative Bartlett, of Georgia.

"He certainly would enjoy a tilt with the gloves better than swinging the stick," responded Nelson, "and he could swing the stick some at that."

The pugllist was just starting to recount the amount of money tied up in the fighting business when a call of the House broke up the committee meeting. Nelson said they rang the gong too soon on him, and he hadn't finished.
